Jeffrey L. Moore, Executive Director

THE WHITE HOUSE

August 13, 2012

Thank you so much for taking the time to promote health and wellness in your community. I am always encouraged to hear about this important work being done all across our country.

As you know, improving the health of our next generation is one of my defining missions as First Lady. That is why we launched the Let's Move! initiative to help ensure all Americans have the basic nutrition they need to learn, grow, and succeed.

By supporting parents, providing healthier foods in schools, helping kids to be more physically active, and making sure all families have access to affordable and healthy food, we can help our children live full and active lives. I truly believe our strength as a country and our ability to responsibly shape our future depends on solving this challenge, and people like you are vital to our success. We need your ideas, your hands, and your heart to lead us to a brighter, healthier tomorrow.

Again, thank you for all that you are doing, and please remember to stay connected with our efforts and share your success stories at www.LetsMove.gov. I wish you the best.
