

Phone call from resident:

I received a phone call the morning of June 4 from Joan, long-time resident of the area, who wished to remain anonymous other than her first name, as she indicated that she was afraid of repercussion. She said she felt she needed to speak up but also protect her family. She also indicated she would be unable to attend the meeting as she is the primary care giver for an individual who would be unable to attend with her. She said, "Our neighborhood is already in trouble, with shootings and murders and drug sales regularly in the area, I'm afraid for my safety if my full name is attached to this statement and it could be traced to me, but I strongly urge Planning Commission to deny the extra hours extension for alcohol. Our neighborhood is already going downhill, and this would contribute to its demise."
